Conference for Current Affairs Program

One of the most interesting and important lessons in school is current affairs. Students read news articles at home, find information about the news on the Internet, present the articles to the entire class, express their opinions, learn to take part in a discussion and acquire knowledge on a wide range of topics. Sixth-graders proposed to hold a day dedicated entirely to current affairs and thus led by Amit Bobbul, one of the school's teachers the Neve Hof Conference for Current Affairs was created, and it was one of the most exciting events of the year. Leading social activities and journalists in Israel, came to the school to talk to us about the issues on the Israeli Agenda. The students asked questions and expressed their views on diverse topics.
The fifth graders at Neve Hof school have studied jointly Language studies and Theater. The students read the play Rumpelstilzchen (written in high language), learned unfamiliar words, wrote stories in which they inserted the words they learned, learned about the characters, and wrote about the lives of the characters outside the play. Throughout their study of the play, they learned language strategies and that significantly improved their language abilities. Simultaneously, volunteering mothers met the Theater teacher to produce together the play. The students took part as actors and the show itself was open to all neighborhood residents and as a Community Theater project and was presented to 330 people.
Third grade Intel Tour

The school’s third grade decided to focus on women in science and high-tech and went on a tour in Intel. Here are the words of one of the parents who joined the tour: “The Intel tour today gave the kids a rare look into technology production, seeing how to produce computer components, phones and more... and see where science can take them. The peak of the visit was watching some of the vast and sterile production hall. It was like a futuristic movie with robots moving parts between production workers in closed suits. The tour was excellent and relevant to 21st century students.”

Fourth grade Field Trip

Hadas, fourth grade teacher: “Over the past month, fourth grade students were divided into trip preparation teams: track activities team, water team, bus activities team, morale team, bonuses team and navigation team. The teams worked before and during the trip, making the trip an unforgettable experience. Together, we crawled through the caves of ‘Hirbat Burgin’, introduced the story of David and Goliath in ‘Tel Ezka’ and marveled at the flora and fauna of this valley.”

Sixth Grade Visit to the Supreme Court

The visit was after a year-long Law Studies program in collaboration with the Law Department at the College of Management. The purpose of the tour was to gain experience of one of the places that make the most important decisions for our lives in Israel. The students learned how the character of the Supreme Court and the values it stands for are expressed in its architecture. The students enjoyed a staged trial that they conducted, argued and judged, and even entered to watch a real trial.

Finding shapes in clouds
During the year, 30 fifth and sixth graders took part in Radio workshops. They were accompanied by Alona Illuz, a radio broadcaster and a social activist and produced their own Podcast (short audio content) on diverse topics. In the process they learned how to interview, produce a story, search for materials and radio delivery. The podcasts produced are: An interview with Clara, the principle; Animal abuse and rights’ Cyberbullying; “Green House” series review; An interview with Yael, the Counselor; An interview with Yuval, the Janitor.
