Estimated number of impacted participants: Atleast 443. As conference videos are released, it's hard to estimate how many people will benefit from watching them later.

Details:

Over 443 attendees representing 50 countries from around the world came together for a combined 169 events (including some which took place during the DebCamp) including more than 50 Talks, 39 Short Talks, 5 Discussions, 59 Birds of a Feather sessions ("BoF" – informal meeting between developers and users), 10 workshops, and activities in support of furthering our distribution and free software, learning from our mentors and peers, building our community, and having a bit of fun.

The one-day session "DebConf 2025 Academic Track!", organized in collaboration with the IRISA laboratory was the first session welcoming fellow academics at DebConf, bringing together around ten presentations.

More than 17 BoFs and talks about community, diversity, and local outreach highlighted the work of various teams involved in not just the technical but also the social aspect of our community; four women who have made contributions to Debian through their artwork in recent years presented their work.

Almost all of the sessions facilitated remote participation via IRC and Matrix messaging apps or online collaborative text documents which allowed remote attendees to "be in the room" to ask questions or share comments with the speaker or assembled audience.

Provisional guide lines for the advancement of the program in the next year: n/a

Please join the Evaluation Report, the Financial Report and the list of the participants to the program (as PDF documents): We do not have an evaluation report. As for the financial report, accounting is still being handled and isn't complete yet. We do not collect or share participant lists for data protection reasons.
